

Great Love and Trust

The respected Comrade Kim Jong Un visited the State Academy of Sciences as his first field guidance in 2018.

Looking round large numbers of scientific research findings and exhibits on display, he said: The brainchild of our scientists is quite amazing. The State Academy of Sciences is the treasure house and the native home of self-reliance and self-development.

And he repeatedly praised the scientists, noting that they were doing a great thing in the drive to develop the national economy and improve the people's living standards, even in the face of difficult conditions where everything was in short supply.

His high praise reflected his great trust not only in the scientists of the academy but in other scientists and technicians across the country that they would creditably fulfil their mission as the pioneers and pacesetters in building a powerful socialist country.
